HEARING

The phase underway now requires the State to license sales and cultivation operators for commercial uses that are not based on Native land. The State license will also require the local governing unit to sign-off that the licensee is meeting any local standards.

Local governing bodies who desire to have their own rules in addition to state requirements, are putting their local standards in writing now, in anticipation of an initial round of State approved applicants coming forward early 2025. Similar to alcoholic spirits, there be "municipal" cannabis stores established, which no city in Chisago County has pursued at this time.

Chisago County is adjacent to Wisconsin, which still has laws that prohibit marijuana sale, possession, consumption, etc.

There are locations along the Wisconsin border where county commissioners have informally discussed the possibility for problems, as customers may opt to transport the product back across the border. Commissioner Ben Montzka expressed concern the issue may cause confusion and wanted the information on law differences made clear to the public. Commissioner Dan Dahlberg agreed this next door customer base makes Chisago County attractive to cannabis retailers, but added that Minnesotans go to Wisconsin and purchase fireworks— and they need to be responsible for their own consequences, and so too must future inter-state cannabis patrons.
